A SUMMARY OF HOUSE BILL 5501 AS INTRODUCED 2-14-90

The bill would amend the Revised Judicature Act to increase the number of judges in the Court of Appeals from 24 to 33 judges, and to allow the court to be enlarged to 49 (rather than the current 36) judges through the temporary assignment of judges from other courts. The candidates elected in 1990 to the three new judgeships in each of the three districts would serve staggered terms based on the number of votes received.
