Senator Jim Stamas of the 36th District offered the following invocation:

Dear Lord, we thank You for this opportunity to be here today. We first thank You that You are within our lives, in our families' lives, and those who You have given so much life to.

Lord, we just thank You for the opportunity to come forth and represent each of our districts, represent the state of Michigan, and move forward protecting our families and guiding our families.

Dear Lord, we ask that You be with those who are in harm's way. We ask that You be with those who call out Your name.

In Your name we pray. Amen.

The President pro tempore, Senator Nesbitt, led the members of the Senate in recital of the Pledge of Allegiance.

The motion prevailed, the time being 10:05 a.m.

10:20 a.m.

The Senate was called to order by the President pro tempore, Senator Nesbitt.

During the recess, Senators Santana and Johnson entered the Senate Chamber.

During the recess, Senator Shirkey introduced the Reading Rangers football team and head coach Rick Bailey, MHSAA Division 8 state champions; and presented them with a Special Tribute.
Coach Bailey responded briefly.

Senator Shirkey asked and was granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.
The motion prevailed.

Senator Shirkey's first statement is as follows:

One of our own sergeants, Rick Cook, is deciding to reprioritize his time and spend even more time with dear Janice here. I haven't had enough time to talk to Janice yet to see if she likes this idea or not. She's smiling here and Rick's got his hand behind her—I think he's guiding what she's supposed to be doing. They've got signals going on here.

Rick has spent most of his career in law enforcement. He spent a very courageous and highly decorated career in the Lansing Police Department and then, 18 years ago, he came to the Senate. You wonder how can somebody do that—two different careers—and still look as young as he does. Janice, I think he must take some credit for how young he looks at this stage after two careers like that. You must make it very easy for him at home.

Rick has progressed through various stages of higher levels of responsibility during his time here in the Senate, and he's been key and instrumental in making sure we're always on the front edge of training our sergeants from the standpoint of safety and security. He's an expert in that area. He's also a natural leader and when people are around him, they just kind of gravitate to him. And even though he can expand eloquently and tell stories that everybody knows are not true, they still give him the kind of respect and attention that he deserves just because he's that kind of person. He and I have shared a few stories about hunting—we have some shared love there—and I can tell you for a fact that this guy knows exactly where all the big bucks are where he hunts because he's always successful. Just like he's been successful here serving the Senate.

And so at this time, Rick and Janice, it is with great appreciation that we thank you for sharing Rick with us for all these years. And Rick, your leadership and your presence is going to be a hard hole to fill. We'll do our best, but on behalf of the Senate and all the colleagues and staff here, we just wish you guys the very best next career you possibly can have. Go forth, prosper, and enjoy. And God bless you for your service.

Senator Shirkey's second statement is as follows:

What a delightful day to have all these tributes. It's bittersweet a bit because we have people we love and have worked for and with for a number of years leaving, but it's also precious that they're able to enjoy health and be able to go and do the next things in life. That's what we have here before us right now.

Tom Wegener has been in the Senate for 30 years—more than 30 years—and is really our guru in the Business Office of purchasing. I'm seeing all kinds of heads nod across the floor here of how Tom and his skills and his passion for helping and his personality is just something that bleeds customer service. Tom is very creative in how he does his job. He's brought along a lot of best-practice, world-class systems and procedures into the department and it makes it function as it does today, and we all are benefactors of that effort.

Now Joyce here, Joyce is Tom's wife. Joyce is also looking forward to this next phase in life in which Tom is not spending all of his time away from home. Tom, by the way, is statewide, nationally, and internationally known for his efforts with the Knights of Columbus. That is a passion that also further reinforces his personality of service. Joyce was sharing with me in the lobby a minute ago, I said, "What can you tell me about Tom?" She says, "Well, I'll just tell you one thing. You can tell a German, but you just can't tell him much."

On behalf of my colleagues and staff and all the support people here on the Senate floor, we just want to thank you, Tom, for all of your service, all of your dedication, all your passion, and all your assistance, and the example you've been for all of us in the role you've played. It's beautiful to see both of you standing here knowing that you're healthy and you're ready to take on these next stages of life which should be nothing but fun. We just bless you. Go forth and prosper and be healthy and enjoy.

Senator Shirkey's third statement is as follows:

We're here to provide a special tribute—this is for exemplary service in the Michigan Senate—as one of our colleagues and co-workers and supporters chooses to take another path in her career.

Sarah Smock—I haven't gotten used to calling you Sarah Waun yet, but I'm working on it; even my e-mails to you say Sarah Smock—and I have been attached at the hip for the bigger part of both of our careers here in the Senate. She has got great instincts and is a true conservative through and through—even to the point where she's acted as a "fun governor" for me, in other words, saying I'm not conservative enough. Yeah, that's right. During her career in the policy office, she has served on health policy, agriculture, and health and human services, all of which are very important to our culture and our state, and very complex. Sarah has demonstrated over and over again her ability to take on complex issues and topics that she had previously no experience in and quickly ramped up to have great expertise and a terrific resource for advice. She's a hard worker.

She's been with me on a couple of big projects—Medicaid expansion was one of them, work requirements was another one, midwifery was a big one that we worked on together and finally got across the goal line. She's been an almost infinite value resource on a wide range of topics. She never hesitated when I would text her or e-mail her at 7 o'clock on Sunday night and say I need a little research done, and, by the way, I'd be appreciative if I could have it by 9 o'clock Monday morning. I can't think of any times in which she disappointed me on that.

She's now choosing to go from working with and trying to help a group of, I say, unmanageable people—by the way, that goes on both sides of the aisle, folks—to a group which she thinks is going to be more manageable. I happen to think in this particular case that she may be challenged in that area because she's going to go take care of government affairs for the Michigan State Medical Society. Now if you think herding a bunch of Senators is difficult, wait until you try to herd a bunch of doctors. I think her background has prepared her well for this. We've had enough bumps in the road, the two of us, and bruises and lessons learned that I think she'll be well-armed to recognize when that occurs.

With that, Sarah, though I really, really hate losing you as a resource in the Senate, I want you to know that I think you can do very well in this next endeavor, and we wish you and Dan nothing but the very best. Let's congratulate them please.

By unanimous consent the Senate proceeded to the order of Messages from the House

Senate Bill No. 184, entitled

Statements

Senator Geiss asked and was granted unanimous consent to make a statement and moved that the statement be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Geiss’ statement is as follows:

I think many of you know that January is Human Trafficking Awareness Month. This is something we not only recognize in Michigan, and even though we don’t have legislation that is currently attached to it, it is something that is a national awareness month. The Department of Homeland Security has designated January 11 as Human Trafficking Awareness Day and hopefully on Saturday as we’re out and about in our districts and our communities, we’ll remember to wear blue, which is their ask of all of us in the country to raise awareness about the perils of human trafficking—something that is modern-day slavery and a horrific scourge on our communities and in our country.
