NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
October 24, 2022
9:00 a.m.

Location: G. Mennen Williams Building Auditorium
525 W. Ottawa Street, Lansing, Michigan

The hearing is held to receive public comments on the following administrative rules:

Sanitarians – General Rules (MOAHR #2022-22 LR)

Authority: MCL 333.16145, 333.16148, and 333.18413, and Executive Reorganization Nos. 1991-9, 1996-2, 2003-1 2011-4, 2009-10, MCL 338.3501, 445.2001, 445.2011, 445.2030, and 333.26364.

Overview: The proposed rules will clarify definitions and the meaning of terms used in the rule set; update environmental health baccalaureate programs accreditation standards, environmental health graduate programs accreditation standards, and higher institution educational program regional accreditation standards; clarify that applicants who are graduates of regionally accredited institutions or unaccredited institutions must provide to the department an evaluation of their educational credentials by a credential evaluation organization; and clarify the requirements for registration by examination, endorsement, reregistration, and renewal.

The rules will take effect immediately upon filing with the Secretary of State, unless specified otherwise in the rules. Comments on the proposed rules may be presented in person at the public hearing. Written comments will also be accepted from date of publication until 5:00 p.m. on October 24, 2022, at the following address or email address:

Two women win Catholic Service Awards

By Journal Staff

MARQUETTE — Two women of faith, Joanie Richtig of Immaculate Conception Parish in Iron Mountain and Barbara Karpus of St. Sebastian Parish in Bessemer, have been chosen as this year's recipients of the Catholic Service Award, the Diocese of Marquette announced.

Richtig is a retired English professor at Bay College West. Her service to her parish includes serving as coordinator of K-8 religious education, Extraordinary Minister of the Eucharist, Adult Folk Choir member, Children's Choir director and a member of the Decorating Committee and Garden Committee.

In her letter of support for Richtig's award nomination, Cathy Carobine wrote, "I am personally indebted to Joanie because in 2017 she led our parish in participating in the anniversary of Fatima. This inspired me to pray the rosary daily which I continue, and therefore it has, of course, changed my life for the better."

Illustrating her devotion to the Holy Family, Richtig leads the rosary before each Saturday afternoon Mass, and she organized a 33-day, at-home Consecration study of St. Joseph during the Year dedicated to Jesus' foster father.

Monsignor James Kaczmarek, pastor of Immaculate Conception Parish, spoke of the time Richtig gladly opened her home to a priest in need.

"Her most selfless gift has been the gift of compassion and care when she and her husband, John, assisted Father Ray Valerio in all his medical and personal needs during the last four months of his illness," he said.

When Lisa Broman received the sacrament of Confirmation as an adult, Richtig was her sponsor. "She takes her faith and commitment to growing my faith seriously," Broman explained. "She was not only my sponsor; she taught the RCIA (Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults) classes when Msgr. Kaz was unable to do so due to his neck injury. Her knowledge, wisdom, and compassion for the Church and all it represents is truly inspirational."

Richtig continues to share her enthusiasm for the faith with those within and beyond her own parish.

Last year, she worked with the region's vicar forane, Fr. Janusz Romanek, and The U.P. Catholic newspaper to spread the message, "Holy Spirit, you are welcome here," for Pentecost. In addition, she invited the 36 pastors of non-Roman churches in Dickinson County to participate in the endeavor.

Perhaps her most well-known service to St. Sebastian Parish is Karpus' 50-some years of playing the organ for Mass and funerals. In his CSA letter of endorsement, her pastor, Fr. Dominic Agyapong, said, "What is so remarkable and worth saying is that she does not take any stipend or reimbursement from the parish either as an organist or any other services for all the years she has been in St. Sebastian's parish, over 56 years."

Parish Council President Peter Armichardy said she is not afraid to get involved in all aspects of a ministry.

"Barbara has coordinated the pasty sales, which includes taking orders, making the pasty dough, and handling the money and pickup of the pasties," he said.

"Barbara also cares for the altar linens and priest's vestments."

Another talent she shares with the clergy is her culinary skills.

"She cooks meals when it is St. Sebastian's turn to host a group of priests. She does this because she can," said Karpus' friend, Margaret Boline. "When an outgoing pastor tells an incoming pastor, 'If you need to know anything about St. Sebastian or need help, call Barbara Karpus,' (you can tell) she is a real asset to St. Sebastian."

In addition, Karpus has taken on leadership roles in many church and community groups, serving as president of the following organizations: St. Sebastian's Parish Council for 19 years, St. Sebastian's School Board for 17 years, St. Sebastian's Parish Home and School Association for 24 years, the Ladies' Guild for 20 years and the Bessemer City Women's Club for 27 years. She also taught high school religious education classes for more than 15 years.

Karpus is currently the regent of the local circle of the Daughters of Isabella, which is a charitable organization of Catholic women founded on the principle of its motto: unity, friendship and charity.

The Catholic Service Award is a program of the Legacy of Faith Endowment, a fund of the Upper Peninsula Catholic Foundation, Inc. It was created in 2006 in the spirit and mission of Legacy of Faith to preserve and foster the Catholic faith in the Upper Peninsula.

Awardees receive recognition in their parish and at the annual diocesan Bishop Ambassadors' dinner for their lifetime dedication and service to the Catholic Church.

In addition, a $250 grant is provided, in honor of the recipients, to a diocesan organization or ministry of their choice.

CSA nominations are due every year by May 1. More information can be found at: www.upcatholic-foundation.org/catholic-service-awards.

Good Advice

Dear Annie

Grieving girlfriend needs time

Dear Annie: I have been with my girlfriend for 2 1/2 years now. She just lost her middle son to a drug overdose exactly one month ago tomorrow. She is really struggling with this. He was her best friend and, out of all her kids, the one most similar to her.

Since his passing, she has become isolated and more depressed. She barely eats and can't sleep, and her health wasn't the greatest before all this. She is having panic attacks and has been prescribed medication to help with everything. She is in therapy as of two weeks now.

The problem is she has completely shut me out.

ANNIE LANE

I just moved in with her in July, and things were strong between us before this. Now she doesn't want me going anywhere with her and her other son. She doesn't want me sleeping in the same bed. She doesn't call me on my way to work anymore unless she has a question. She doesn't even respond to my text when I check in on her from work. I just feel completely shut out and wonder why I'm even still here.

Will she ever get past this? She stated she will never be happy again. If that's true, why am I here? I know it's recent, but her whole focus day and night is strictly about her lost son. She has zero interest in doing anything -- no watching TV, leaving the house or even knowing when she can go back to work. She has lost interest in all hobbies and interests.

I completely understand she's grieving, but we are both in our 40s, and at some point, I do want to start living again. Preferably with her. Can you give me advice on how to handle this better and even a time frame on expecting anything to return to somewhat normal? I know completely normal is never possible. I am in a family therapy group that meets twice a week for grief and loss of loved ones. I'm just really worried after hearing stories that we may never get back to where we were. Thanks for any help. -- At a Loss

Dear At a Loss: My heart goes out to you, your girlfriend and your entire family. Losing a child is an unimaginable tragedy, and it makes perfect sense that your girlfriend is far from recovered after only one month. It is going to take a lot of time and a lot of effort for her to get through this.

Right now, your girlfriend's priority is not you or your relationship; it is her lost son, her living son and her immense grief. You need to have patience and grace for her as she processes this loss and learns to live a life without her son.

Eventually -- with the help of time, therapy, and her loving and supportive boyfriend -- she will be able to see some hope in her life again. At that time, you two should enter couples therapy to make sure you are still making your relationship a priority.
