Statements

Senators Hardiman, Brater, Scott and Hammerstrom asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Hardiman's statement is as follows:

I rise today to offer comments on the recent annual celebration of the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. This past Monday marked the 20th such celebration since that day became a national holiday. It is good that we pause to remember Dr. King's birthday, but it is better that we pause to remember Dr. King's message.

Martin Luther King must not become a soft, comfortable memory. He was a real man who inspired as he challenged the order of the day. One sermon he returned to again and again, and it is one of my favorites, is the "Transformed Nonconformist." He stood out and he led according to his beliefs. If we confine Dr. King to a happy memory, we would deny his relevance for this day and age. We keep him from speaking to us still. Some might want to consider him a man of the past, pigeonholed into a window of a time called the '60s, but that would miss the point of his mission and his teaching. I think he would look upon Michigan in the year 2006 and warn us like the prophets of the Old Testament.

Our state faces great challenges. Our economic security is threatened by strong outside competitors like never before. Our largest city faces both the glittering excitement of the Super Bowl and huge fiscal challenges. Other communities across the state have their own troubling situations. There are many real problems, and they worry many people in and out of government.

I think Dr. King would be especially concerned about the state of relations between different segments of our state and the chance that the divisions among us would grow, not shrink. In an election year, it's especially easy to find things to divide one group against another. The November ballot will include a question on whether to end affirmative action programs in state government and higher education. We can already see a fierce debate building.

Some speak of a color-blind society and even use quotes of Dr. King to advocate ending affirmative action. To those people I would say this: There has been great progress in legal rights for people of color because of Dr. King and many others. However, the day-to-day life experience for people in our minority communities still has far too many reminders of racial differences and separation. This may sound strange to people who do not experience it, but I can assure you it's a real feeling for many of our neighbors, and it needs to be discussed.

We can strive for great economic progress or landslide electoral victories, but the message of Martin Luther King is that we must finish the work of healing our state and the torn relations between her people. This is his message and his challenge to us. In his 1963 letter from a Birmingham jail, he wrote, "We are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny. Whatever affects one directly, affects all indirectly."

Dr. King was with us only a short time. When we celebrate his birthday next year, he will have been gone almost as long as he was here on Earth. In his collection of writings titled Why We Can't Wait, he spoke of his vision for racial healing. "Eventually, the Civil Rights Movement will have contributed infinitely more to the nation than the eradication of racial injustice. It will have enlarged the concept of brotherhood to a vision of total interrelatedness. On that day, 'no man is an island' will find its truest application in the United States."

My hope and prayer is that we will celebrate the life of Martin Luther King, Jr., by working and living up to those words in our personal lives and our public service.

Senator Brater's statement is as follows:

I rise to say a few words in memory of a firefighter who died in the line of duty in Ann Arbor. I rise with sadness to ask you to join me in honoring a dedicated Ann Arbor firefighter, Amy Schnearle-Pennywitt, who died in the line of duty on Friday, January 13, 2006, as a result of injuries she received while responding to a multiple-car accident in icy conditions on I-94 near Jackson Road in Ann Arbor on January 7.

This tragedy reminds us of the dangers firefighters and all emergency personnel face every day in their service to our community. We are grateful to them all for their bravery and commitment to service.

Amy lived her whole life in Washtenaw County; she was a resident of Manchester. She was a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and a member, as I said, of the Ann Arbor Fire Department. She leaves a long legacy of service and friendship to our community. She is remembered as an exemplary firefighter, and many of her co-workers stood vigil with her family during her hospital stay for updates on her condition.

Hundreds of firefighters and other emergency personnel came to Ann Arbor from all of your districts all over the state yesterday, and I am very grateful for that. Her farewell extended for miles. The emergency vehicles were lined up and proceeded across Washtenaw County from Ann Arbor to her burial place in Manchester.

Amy was fun-loving and compassionate. She was known as the organizer of the many social events for the Ann Arbor Fire Department. She had just married in October and had not only a new husband, but also a young stepson, and she looked forward to a bright future with her husband Alan Pennywitt and her stepson Jacob. Her family will surely miss her kindheartedness, her joy, and her caring.

Amy Pennywitt was the first Washtenaw County firefighter killed in the line of duty since 1961 and the first female firefighter ever killed in our local history. Her sense of duty and commitment to service is an inspiration to all of us.

Nothing can ease the grief of her family, but I hope that they will accept our condolences and deep sympathy in their loss. I also want to extend our condolences to her colleagues in the Ann Arbor Fire Department, who are greatly missing Amy today and I know will continue to do so in the months and years ahead.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of Ann Arbor firefighter Amy Schnearle-Pennywitt.

Senator Scott's statement is as follows:

To my colleagues, you know it has been a long time talking about this insurance. I don't think there is any other issue that has dealt with our constituents that we haven't dealt with. So I am asking in our last year can we please deal with these insurances?

I'm going to read to you another story from my website, and this is from Detroit. "Well, I have a 1998 Dodge Neon and I no longer carry full coverage insurance. The most affordable insurance company for me was and is today State Farm. At the time I purchased my vehicle in 1998, I was 28 years of age. In 2003, my co-worker, 26 years of age with a wife 25 years of age, purchased full coverage auto insurance through AAA of Michigan. They both live in Troy, Michigan. One vehicle was a 2000 Intrepid and the other vehicle was a 1999 Aero van. Now, my co-worker was quoted a price of $450 every six months. He had to make payments for four months and had two months free of payment. And at that time in 2003, I was 33 years of age with no moving violations in 13 years. I called the same agent about five minutes after my co-worker did and was quoted a policy that could cost me over $3,000 every six months. No doubt this was because I lived in the city of Detroit. I received similar quotes from other insurance agencies as well; therefore, I continue to stay with State Farm which charged me $1,200 every six months. This included multiple insurance coverage, auto and life that decreased my premiums to this amount."

So, colleagues, let's get real and have some hearings on these insurances. We have to do better by our constituents.

Senator Hammerstrom's statement is as follows:

Colleagues, today a progress report will be issued by Women In Government on the "State of Cervical Cancer Prevention in America." I am happy to report that Michigan received a "good" rating—an improvement over the initial report last year where we only ranked "fair." While this is good news, we scored only 56 percent out of a possible 100 percent. My friends, there is still work to be done given that this type of cancer is actually preventable.

I have been involved over the past two years in Women In Government's challenge to eliminate cervical cancer campaign, as have other women colleagues in this chamber. We have been educated about the disease and realize that the human Papillomavirus, or HPV, is the cause of most cervical cancers. We know that newer technologies are now available to detect and monitor the HPV virus to prevent cervical cancer from developing, and we continue to spread the word to other women around this great state.

However, this report tells us that too many women in Michigan and across the country still remain unscreened or underscreened for cervical cancer. Our screening rate of 86.5 percent is higher than the national average of 85.9 percent, and our Medicaid in Michigan offers unrestricted coverage of HPV testing. Our incidence and mortality rates are lower than the national averages. This is good news for Michigan women, but it's not enough.

This body did its part in 2004 when we passed a resolution encouraging the Governor to appoint a cervical cancer task force in an effort to raise public awareness that this disease is preventable and to inform our citizens of the most advanced and appropriate screening technologies available. To date, that task force has not been named, but it is my understanding that the Governor is working on it, and hopefully, the body will be named in the near future. I urge the Governor not to let this issue fall through the cracks. This issue is too important to place on a back burner. Let's do all we can to help ensure that no more Michigan women die needlessly from this deadly disease.

By unanimous consent the Senate returned to the order of
