CONTENT

House Bill 5211 (H-1) would amend the Michigan Zoning Enabling Act to include consideration of public transportation in zoning plans. Under the Act, a zoning ordinance must be based on a plan designed to facilitate adequate provision for a system of transportation, among other goals. Under the bill, with regard to a plan adopted or substantively amended more than 90 days after the bill's effective date, provision for a transportation system would include public transportation.

House Bill 5212 (S-1) would amend the Michigan Planning Enabling Act to include public transportation facilities and routes in the subjects covered by master plans, and include public transportation agencies in the planning process.

Under the Act, in the preparation of a master plan, a planning commission must cooperate with all departments of the State and Federal governments and other public agencies concerned with programs for economic, social, and physical development within the planning jurisdiction and seek the maximum coordination of the local unit's programs with these agencies. The bill would include public transportation agencies among the entities with which a planning commission must coordinate.

The Act requires a master plan to include certain subjects that reasonably can be considered pertinent to the future development of the planning jurisdiction, including a land use plan for agriculture, residences, commerce, industry, recreation, ways and grounds, public buildings, schools, soil conservation, forests, woodlots, open space, wildlife refuges, and other uses and purposes. The bill would include public transportation facilities among these uses.

The Act also requires a master plan to include the general location, character, and extent of streets, railroads, airports, bicycle paths, pedestrian ways, bridges, waterways, and waterfront developments. The bill would require that the plan also include the general location, character, and extent of public transportation facilities and routes.

The bill specifies that those references to public transportation facilities would apply only to a master plan that was adopted or substantively amended more than 90 days after the bill took effect.

FISCAL IMPACT

The bills would have no effect on State revenue or expenditure. The bills could potentially increase some administrative costs by an unknown and likely minimal amount in affected local units by requiring the consideration of additional factors and widening the array of entities included in the review of master plans.
