House Bill 5413 as introduced
Sponsor: Rep. Steven Johnson

Committee: Oversight
Complete to 1-24-18

SUMMARY:

House Bills 5412 and 5413 would amend the Freedom of Information Act to clarify that the fee for providing public records in response to a FOIA request could include the costs of providing the information on any physical media that was not paper and also to allow state agencies to use an electronic format when publishing certain types of information required to be published and made available to the public.

House Bill 5412 would amend Section 4 of the act (MCL 15.234). Currently, a public body may charge a fee for a public record search, for a copy of the record for inspection, for the necessary copying of public records for inspection, or for providing a copy of the record. The fee is limited to actual mailing costs and to the actual incremental cost of duplication or publication, including labor, the cost of the search, examination, review, and separation of information that is exempt from disclosure under the act from that which is not exempt. If the public body estimates or charges a fee, the total fee cannot exceed the sum of components listed in the statute. The components include such things as the portion of labor costs directly associated with the search to locate the requested public records.

The list of components that may be included in the total fee also allow a public body to include—when public records are provided to a requestor on nonpaper physical media—the actual and most reasonably economical cost of computer discs, computer tapes, or other digital or similar media.

The bill would revise this provision to refer instead to public records provided to a requestor on any form of nonpaper physical media.

House Bill 5413 would amend Section 11 of the act (MCL 15.241). Currently, a state agency is required to publish and make available to the public certain information: for example, promulgated rules and other written statements that implement or interpret laws, rules, or policy (e.g., guidelines, manuals, and certain forms adopted or used by an agency in the discharge of its functions). Publications may be in pamphlet, loose-leaf, or other appropriate form in printed, mimeographed, or other written matter.

The bill would allow, in addition to the above, the publications to be in electronic format.

FISCAL IMPACT:

House Bill 5412 would have no fiscal impact on state and local governments. The provisions of the bill could lower costs associated with FOIA compliance, thereby leading to lower costs for FOIA requestors. However, since the act authorizes a public body to charge a fee that includes “the actual and most reasonably economic cost,” a public body would realize no overall fiscal impact.

House Bill 5413 would lower costs for state agencies by a minimal amount. Any fiscal impact would be the result of reduced printing costs associated with making the required publications available to the public.
