Rabbi Bentzion Shemtov, Rabbi at Chabad Student Center at MSU in East Lansing, offered the following invocation:

“B”H

Almighty G-d, Sovereign of the Universe. As we approach the Jewish holiday of Passover on Friday, March 30th, the festival of our freedom from the tyranny of the ancient Egyptian Pharaoh, let us contemplate the timeless message Passover tells us, and let us pray that it permeate our entire being.

In Hebrew, Egypt is called Mitzrayim, which also means boundaries. Spiritually, the enslavement of Egypt is the limitations we find ourselves bounded by, whether self-imposed or through external forces.

We pray today to be delivered from these obstacles, to let our G-d-given potential have the free reign to create an even better future for our families, our state and the entire world.

We pray to be grateful for what we have, and rejoice in what we can become. To ‘pass over’ our personal shortcomings, rising from despair to freedom.

Let us be inspired by the shining example of the Lubavitcher Rebbe, Rabbi Schneerson.

The Rebbe embodied the message that every person, and every action, can have an immeasurable impact for good. The Rebbe emphasized the importance of education and good character, explaining that education is not only acquisition of knowledge, but primarily, moral and ethical character development.

Over the past four decades, the United States Congress has established ‘Education and Sharing Day USA,’ to be proclaimed annually by the presiding US President on the anniversary of the Rebbe’s birth, in tribute to his accomplishments in inculcating our next generation with the eternal values of morality, goodness, and kindness, the very values that make this country strong.

It is an opportunity to take pause; to recognize our responsibility in ensuring our children have the necessary foundation to lead fulfilling lives, rich in purpose and meaning.

As this State Legislature votes today to designate Tuesday, March 27, 2018, as Education and Sharing Day Michigan, we call on all residents of this great State to reflect on the vital role education plays in preparing our youth to be the leaders of tomorrow, instilling them with the passion and vision to serve a cause greater than themselves.

Let us impress on their young minds—and on our own—the empowering message: even one single act of goodness and kindness may tip the heavenly scales, ushering in an era of peace for the entire world.

Almighty G-d, Who watches and guides us constantly, bless this assembly, the honorable members of the House of Representatives. Guide them to always be conscious of Your presence, and to enact laws with honesty and integrity in accordance with Your heavenly will.

May our State serve as a beacon of light to all people regardless of race, ethnicity or ability. Indeed, may this great state of Michigan play a central role in achieving that awesome goal so powerfully stated in the pledge of allegiance: that the United States of America truly be ‘one nation, under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.’

Let us say: Amen.”

The Speaker called the Speaker Pro Tempore to the Chair.

In The Chair: Chatfield

The House agreed to the title of the bill.

Rep. Lauwers moved that the bill be given immediate effect.

The motion prevailed, 2/3 of the members serving voting therefor.

Rep. Love, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:
“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

I take bullying and cyber-bullying very seriously. In fact, I’ve participated in several anti-bullying rallies with students in my district. And while it is important and necessary for the civility of our society to combat and eliminate bullying, I find the definitions on what constitutes criminal level cyber-bullying too vague and the penalties excessive as outlined in HB5018 (and HB5017).

Too often our emotions can get the best of us and we say things we don’t actually mean and eventually regret. Making the first offense a misdemeanor seems extreme. It takes one trip to the comment sections of an online newspaper to see what would, under these bills, be multiple counts of misdemeanor offenses of cyber-bullying. We cannot legislate morality. We cannot legislate people being nicer to each other through threat of punishment.”

By unanimous consent the House returned to the order of

Article 25 of the Declaration states that “Everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family.” It is important that we, as citizens of a United Nations Member State, recognize this important day to reaffirm our commitment to helping others and working together for a more tranquil and healthy world; and

Whereas, Excellence in education is vital to the success of our nation and our state; and in the great state of Michigan we seek the betterment of our citizens, and look to instill each child and adolescent with a good education; and

Whereas, By preparing our students for the responsibilities and opportunities of the future, education develops the intellect through lessons in literacy, math, and science; and

Whereas, One shining example for all people of what education ought to be was provided by the Rebbe, Rabbi Menachem Mendel Schneerson, of righteous memory, a global spiritual leader who dedicated his life to the betterment of mankind. A tireless advocate for youth around the world, the Rebbe emphasized the importance of education and good character, and instilled the hope for a brighter future into the lives of countless people in America and across the globe; and

Whereas, The Rebbe taught that education, in general, should not be limited to the acquisition of knowledge and preparation for a career, or, in common parlance, “to make a better living,” and we must think in terms of a “better living” not only for the individual but also for the society as a whole, and that the educational system must, therefore, pay more attention, indeed the main attention, to the building of character, with emphasis on moral and ethical values; and

House Resolution No. 291.

A resolution to declare April 2018 as Financial Literacy Month in the state of Michigan.

Whereas, Financial literacy is the basic knowledge and skills allowing individuals to make educated decisions about their financial resources and plan for a stable economic future; and

Whereas, Individuals who are proficient in financial literacy possess the capability to create and execute short term and long term budgets, invest in the market, save and plan for retirement, buy a house, pay off student loans, grow a credit score, and manage communications with banks and other financial institutions; and

Whereas, A 2014 survey conducted by the Global Financial Literacy Excellence Center found only 57% of adults can be described as financially literate. In 2016, only 2 in 5 adults in the United States reported having and tracking a budget. These numbers are shockingly low considering the United States is ranked in the top 10 highest incomes in the world. In order for the state of Michigan to remain economically competitive it is important our citizens are well versed in skills allowing them to build and maintain a successful fiscal future; and

Whereas, Acquiring the skillset of financial literacy is an important metric of student success and essential for students to learn before they graduate, whether they're going to college and handling student loans, or immediately entering the workforce. The cost of student loans is increasing every year; over the past 15 years, data shows balances have more than quadrupled. Today, 44 million students collectively owe over $1.4 trillion dollars in loans. In Michigan, the average student attending a four year university carries a balance of $30,852 and a student earning a two year degree leaves carrying a balance of $13,600; and

Whereas, A strong proficiency in financial literacy is extremely beneficial for young adults embarking into a new era of financial independence. During the years of young adulthood, individuals are required to make important decisions impacting their entire fiscal future; and

Whereas, Financial literacy rates are lower for adults older than 50 and lowest among those older than 65 years old. This skill is a necessary asset for residents of Michigan working towards retirement. Establishing local programs for our elderly citizens can help target these alarming rates and assist individuals as they progress through the later stages of life. Providing resources teaching financial literacy can aid working class citizens as they create a satisfactory individualized retirement plan. Assembling a personal retirement savings plan gives individuals a better chance to achieve economic security prior to leaving the workforce. These stages are arguably the most crucial time of your fiscal life, as they build a foundation for economic security; and

Whereas, Many life events, both positive and negative can drastically change your financial plans. Citizens can unexpectedly face a decline in health, medical expenses, or legal trouble. In instances of legal trouble, individuals returning from correctional facilities are often left with fees, costs, fines, and other financial obligations that many are unable to manage. Implementing financial education programs within facilities can help prepare them for the outside world and help remove barriers hindering them from readjusting back into their communities; and

Whereas, A lack of awareness of financial literacy leads to a decrease in economic security. Working families require a living wage and economic security in order to comfortably provide for their family and raise their children. Providing programs to coach families on responsible money management can reduce levels of stress within those households. Equipping citizens with the skill of financial literacy is important for boosting the economic well-being of citizens throughout the community, and thereby boosting the well-being of the community as a whole; and

Whereas, Acknowledging the importance of financial literacy allows us to develop sustainable economic policies to elevate more Michiganders to the middle class. In addition, understanding the inner workings of bureaucratic financial institutions is essential to navigating banks, credit unions, lenders, realtors and countless services that contribute to a successful fiscal lifestyle. Lowering poverty rates does not simply create more jobs, it strengthens our citizens' proficiency of financial literacy so they may play an active role in our financial system, move up the economic ladder, and achieve the American Dream; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the House of Representatives, That the members of this legislative body declare April 2018 as Financial Literacy Month in the state of Michigan.

House Resolution No. 292.

A resolution to declare April 2018 as Fair Housing Month in the state of Michigan.

Whereas, The Fair Housing Act protects people from discrimination when they are renting, buying, or securing financing for any housing by providing that a person may not be discriminated against because of race, color, national origin, religion, sex, disability, or presence of children; and

Whereas, Congress passed the Fair Housing Act in April 1968 and it was signed into law by President Lyndon B. Johnson on April 11, 1968; and

Whereas, In 1975, realtors nationwide adopted an agreement with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to promote fair housing, educate members regarding their rights and obligations under the Fair Housing Act, develop and recommend fair housing procedures for members, and participate in community based fair housing activities; and

Whereas, In 1988, realtors across the nation supported expanding the Fair Housing Act to prohibit discrimination based on familial status and handicap or disability; and

Whereas, Diversity creates stronger communities and provides Michigan citizens the best opportunity to achieve the American dream, and fair housing plays an integral role in fostering such communities; now, therefore, be it

Rep. Cole moved that the bill be given immediate effect.

Rep. Love, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:
“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

I take bullying and cyber-bullying very seriously. In fact, I’ve participated in several anti-bullying rallies with students in my district. And while it is important and necessary for the civility of our society to combat and eliminate bullying, I find the definitions on what constitutes criminal level cyber-bullying too vague and the penalties excessive as outlined in HB5018 (and HB5017).

Too often our emotions can get the best of us and we say things we don’t actually mean and eventually regret. Making the first offense a misdemeanor seems extreme. It takes one trip to the comment sections of an online newspaper to see what would, under these bills, be multiple counts of misdemeanor offenses of cyber-bullying. We cannot legislate morality. We cannot legislate people being nicer to each other through threat of punishment.”

Rep. Geiss, having reserved the right to explain her protest against the passage of the bill, made the following statement:
“Mr. Speaker and members of the House:

Bill 5626 is designed to have the appearance of streamlining the voting process and making ballot language regarding school enhancement millages potentially shorter. However, the final phrase of the bill that reads: ‘to which the revenue from that millage will be disbursed may be disclosed on the ballot as “public schools,”’ is misleading.

When most people think of public schools, they view them as the traditional public schools and our community school districts. And while charter schools are by legal definition in the state of Michigan called ‘public school academies,’ or PSAs, rarely are they called that. Pretty much everyone calls them charter schools. Charter schools even call themselves charter schools in conversation and on documents—distinguishing themselves from traditional public schools...that is...until it comes to the issue of tax-payer funded dollars.

This bill takes advantage of our muddled linguistic waters when it comes to how we speak about traditional public schools and charter schools and is yet another continuation of this Legislature’s persistent attack on our public schools and shows a desire to keep voters in the dark. This Legislature has already expanded regional enhancement millages to include charter and cyber schools, depleting the funds to our traditional public schools. Now, this Legislature wants to hide where the voters’ money is going. This is unacceptable.

This bill intentionally serves to mislead the voting public about exactly where their taxpayer dollars are going. The only way for voters to make an informed decision about where their taxpayer dollars are going is to give them full disclosure. People deserve to know and should know exactly which schools will be supplemented by the enhancement millages. It seems like a simple concept because it is.

We cannot expect people to know what they are voting for if we don’t inform them with full transparency and provide all of the information that they need. Shortcuts that omit relevant information that voters need to make fully informed decisions is dishonest and disingenuous and I urge a no vote on this legislation.”
