Senator Judith K. Emmons of the 33rd District offered the following invocation:

Heavenly Father, we come before You as humble individuals this morning. We come before You as people who sin, and we know that Your path is the path that we should take. We know that we should seek Your face, we should seek Your will, and then we'll be the end to what it is You want us to do.

Help us to be aware. Help us to always understand what it is You want us to undertake. Help us to always be conscious of being fair-minded and thinking of those who aren't here—those who we serve. We are their servants, but, primarily, we are Your servants. We thank You, Father, that You have placed us in this body. Help us to always be mindful of the responsibility that we bear to work toward the greater good that You have prepared.

We ask that You would bless our families, and bless all of those who are connected with this body and with this government. We ask this all in Jesus' name. Amen.

The President, Lieutenant Governor Calley, led the members of the Senate in recital of the Pledge of Allegiance.

Statements

Senator Conyers asked and was granted unanimous consent to make a statement and moved that the statement be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Conyers’ statement is as follows:

Today, I rise to remember one of Detroit’s finest. It’s during these dark times that you’ll often hear me or one of my colleagues bring up the spirit of Detroit, and it’s at the same time that we do for this latest fallen hero. We have such brave public servants who protect our city and who, like Officer Doss, embody the spirit of Detroit.

What exactly is the Spirit of Detroit? If you’ve ever been to our great city, as many of you have and many of you grew up in, I implore you to visit the monument. It’s a larger-than-life landmark that represents the city and those who love it across our great state. On the wall behind the sculpture is a verse from 2 Corinthians—chapter 3, verse 17—which reads: “Now the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.” Think about that for a second—“where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.” The plaque on the front of the monument reads, “The artist expresses the concept that God, through the spirit of man is manifested in the family, the noblest human relationship.”

When taken together, everything that the spirit of Detroit represents is seen through Officer Doss in each of his 25 years. His father was a police officer, and while Glenn could have gone anywhere in the world, he chose to stay home and protect the citizens in the city that he loved. His family said he chose a career in law enforcement because he wanted to serve the community he grew up in. There were ups and down in the job, no doubt, and certainly it came with its own set of risks. But the one thing that remained the same was his commitment to the people in his life—his family, his girlfriend of nine years, his son of nine months, and his brother blue who had worked alongside him just two short years ago, and of course Detroiters. Glenn passed away two days ago, on Sunday, at the age of 25, as a result of the gunshot wounds he suffered while protecting those very same residents that he pledged to protect and serve. We lost a wonderful spirit that day.

Wherever Glenn was, so too was liberty; wherever Glenn was, so too was his family and his brothers and sisters in law enforcement of the Detroit Police Department; wherever Glenn was, so too was the spirit of Detroit. It is up to us to make sure that we live our lives in a way that will honor his memory and continue to forge along the path that he paved—building better communities, creating safer neighborhoods, and just being kind to one another.

Officer Glenn Doss Jr.’s dedication to Detroit will never be forgotten; just like the spirit of Detroit, he will live on through each and every one of us and across our state of Michigan through his brothers and sisters in the law enforcement community. Just like the spirit of Detroit, I believe that our city and our state can rise again through strong support of law enforcement and those who live their lives to protect and serve.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of Glenn Doss Jr., Detroit police officer.
